Lib Dems en marche!
The Dacorum contingent marching for co-operation and freedom.

Join Britain's Fastest Growing Party
The Party for YOU!

The Liberal Democrats have more members nationally than the Conservatives. This makes them UK's second largest political party

So are you Young? ...or Young at Heart?
Do you prefer co-operation to competition?
Do you want a better future, rather than the false dawn of a rose-tinted past?

Do you value personal responsibility and restraint, to egotism and conflict?

Do you prefer fairness of opportunity to the maintenance of privilege?

Do you prefer solidarity to selfishness? Opportunity to oppression? Encouragement to control?

Do you believe reward should come from merit, not from entitlement or social origins?

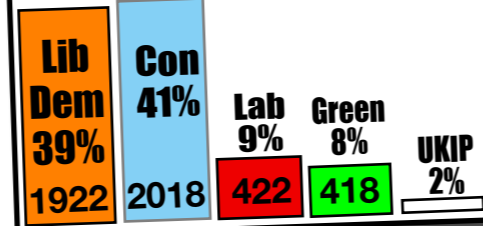

Do you believe we have a common interest to mitigate the disadvantage and misfortune of others?

Do you believe we should celebrate differences, but never tolerate discrimination.

Do you believe we should help people to make the most of their lives - irrespective of background, ethnicity, aptitude or handicaps?

Thank You! For a Massive Vote of Confidence in the County Council Elections.

"Thank you, Tring," said Nick Hollinghurst on being re-elected to Hertfordshire County Council to represent the Tring Division.

"It's a privilege and a pleasure to be the County Councillor for Tring and the surrounding villages," he added.

"This is a beautiful area of the Chiltern Hills and it is noted for its strong community spirit and the friendliness of the people. I look forward to serving again for another four years."

Re-Elected!

Cllr Nick Hollinghurst
"Your Voice at County Hall"

A Good Result Across the County for Herts Lib Dems

The Liberal Democrats lost one seat but gained three and so their Group has now increased from 16 to 18.

Labour lost 6 seats to end up with 9.

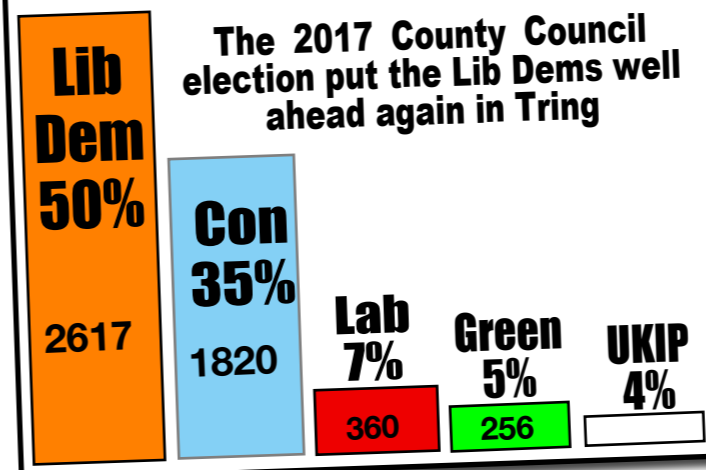

The Liberal Democrats remain as the Official Opposition on the County Council.

The Current Composition of Herts County Council

Still out of balance, still a long way to go!

New Leader, New Party, New Programme

Vince says, "There is much to be patriotic about in Britain today.

It is more tolerant and inclusive than when my late wife and I started an inter-racial family a generation ago. It has great resources of creativity and business talent, of learning and research. There is real generosity of spirit and a sense of community."

"But there is also much that is wrong.

There are disfiguring inequalities of wealth and opportunity."

Reducing Inequality Matters

In terms of people's sense of well being and satisfaction, reducing inequality matters far more than the general level of prosperity.

High inequality destroys the sense of community, fosters resentment and leads to social tension and increases in crime.

Income Inequality is Growing

Post-tax income inequality rose strongly in the 1980's, though it has slowed a little since. Among developed countries, UK is now one of the most unequal, well behind Scandinavia, Germany and France. We have become similar to the US, S Africa and post-Communist Russia.

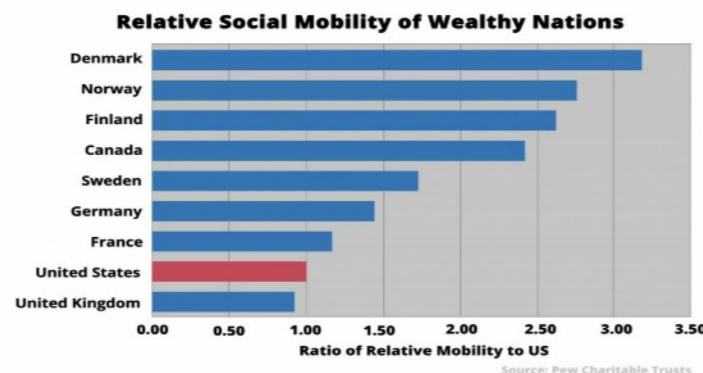

The top 1% are about half a million of mostly middle aged men. They tend to work in financial services, the law or medicine and earn just over £150,000 each.

The super-rich (the top 0.1%) are roughly 50,000 people earning £1+ million per year.

Wealth Inequality is growing

The Resolution Foundation now estimates that the top 1% of adults - 488,000 people - own 14% of the UK's assets. That's about £3.16 million each.

Meanwhile, at the other end of the scale, 15% of adults (7.3 million people) either have no assets at all or are in debt.

Social Mobility in UK is worse than in US

These inequalities make Social Mobility in the UK one of the worst in the world. Here, by and large, your prosperity and wealth depend on your father's. If he was poor, you'll be poor - if he was rich, you'll be rich. Not very fair, is it?

Lib Dems will Work to Put This Right by:

- improving equality of opportunity
- integrating tax and National Insurance
- taxing wealth fairly to finance education
- putting a penny on tax to fund the NHS
- direct measures like the Minimum Wage

LATCos - A Better Way to Keep our Roads in Good Condition?

Local Authority Trading Companies - or LATCos in the jargon - are not new. They are authorised under the 2003 Local Government Act. Perhaps it's time to think about a LATCo to handle basic highway maintenance in our county?

For a long time now, Hertfordshire County Council (HCC) has outsourced most of its highway maintenance and design work under long term contracts. The current contract with Ringway has been in place since 2012 and is worth £182 million.

However, contracts like these seem to need rather more management and checking than HCC seems able to carry out. It's fair to say that the public's view certainly is that the results for this contract - like the one before it - always fail to meet their expectations.

Nevertheless, despite poor contract management HCC were still able to claw back £1.2 million for proven poor workmanship over the last 5 years - and further deductions are pending.

Now, you might think that they may have learned the lesson at the end of the first 5 years - but no! At the end of September, Tory councillors recommended that the contract is extended for another 5 years.

There appears to be have been no market testing and Hertfordshire's decision came only a week after Shropshire announced that they were replacing Ringway by Kier.

The Tories say that results are getting better. This could be true if the smaller number of penalties really does mean performance is improving, but Cllr Nick Hollinghurst says, "This is not the experience of residents. It could just mean Ringway are getting better at gaming with their targets - or even that HCC is catching them out less!"

He continued, "These contracts are working no better in other parts of the country - so perhaps new arrangements should be explored."

Southampton is reported to be setting up a Local Authority Trading Company (LATCo) to run waste collection and other public services in the city. It will be wholly-owned by the council and savings or profit could be reinvested into council services.

Nick asks, "Some highway work is already directly contracted and this works much better. Why not a LATCo like Southampton, but for routine highway repair and maintenance? It could hardly be worse than what we have at the moment - and it could be a lot cheaper!"

Now is NOT the Time to Reduce Democratic Accountability of the Hertfordshire Fire and Rescue Service.

There is an ongoing enquiry into the appalling tragedy at Grenfell Tower. We do not know what its conclusions will be.

But one thing is sure. This is not the time to reduce the democratic accountability of Herts Fire & Rescue Service.

But this is the effect of the proposals of the Police & Crime Commissioner. He wants the running and responsibility for our county's Fire & Rescue Service to be taken away from the County Council so that this vital service is run by his office.

It would be one Commissioner to answer to you once every 4 years rather 78 County Councillors accessible to everyone all the time.

Every one of the Hertfordshire County Councillors is opposed to this.

If you think this is the wrong thing to do e-mail commissioner@herts.pcc.pnn.gov.uk to say so.
